Not an encyclopedia of how to train your cat, but rather short stories of various adventure cats. I adopted a kitten from the animal shelter just before going on a road trip. You know how it is; he was the last one left in the cage and he gave me that look! The clerk at the pet store who helped me outfit him asked me if I was going to train him. I told her I thought cats trained us. She told me about this book and it gave me a different perspective on cats. After 3 weeks on the road, my kitten LOVES to travel and owns the car, sitting in the back window and watching the world zoom safely by. He (Elohim) considers it his safe den and doesn't try to bolt out because he is trained. Just the other day, I crossed paths with long distance mountain hikers who had their tiger kitten with them sporting a tiny bandana! They said the kitten slept out in the open with them requiring no cage.² of 2 people found the following review helpful. Very nicely and cutely

By Customer Nothing negative to say about this book it's everything it claims to contain. Very nicely and cutely written

By Kristin Bauer fun book. I've had cats my whole life and just got two kittens - it's very fun to think of them being able to explore more with us and also how to do it. A nice fun read. Thank you Laura!

Just when you thought you knew all there was to know about cats comes the ultimate—and unexpected—guide to taking your cat into the wild. Here are cats walking on a leash. Cats hiking on a leash. Cats tramping through snow. Cats camping. Cats kayaking, canoeing, even surfing—yes, cats who love water. When animal writer and active hiker Laura Moss couldn't find an online resource for hitting the trail with her cat, she created one. AdventureCats.org took off like wildfire, with attention from Wired, the Huffington Post, Outside magazine, BuzzFeed, and much more. Now, the book Adventure Cats—a collection of jaw-dropping photographs, inspiring stories of real-life cats, and all the how-to a cat owner needs—will take readers and their cats well beyond the backyard. Learn how to leash-train a cat. What to do if you encounter wildlife on the trail. Plus, winter safety tips, and how to bring a little bit of the outdoors to an indoor cat. The stories themselves are catnip for animal lovers, from Nanakuli, the one-eyed cat who hangs ten; to Georgie, a four-year-old gray tabby who lives on a sailboat; to Quandary, who not only insists on hiking with her family but also teaches them a valuable lesson: When you follow your cat's natural tendency to wander, you experience the outdoors at a slower, richer pace. This book will delight every cat person, regardless of whether their pet is inclined to adventure. (Take the quiz at the beginning of the book to find out!)

“An excellent training guide for any level of outdoor fun.” — Library Journal “Simply the most extraordinary book about cats that I have read in decades.” —Frank McMillan, Director of Animal Well-Being Studies at Best Friends Animal Society
