Dennis Lee : Alligator Pie before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Alligator Pie:

It is older, and to be honest I was a little disappointed when I purchased the book sight unseen on the recommendation of another teacher. The psychedelic illustrations looked dated and made me hesitant to use it as a read aloud in my classroom. But the silly poetry is engaging, and the kids (especially the boys) LOVED it!!! They laughed and giggled when I read a few selections, and I heard the poem "Alligator Pie" repeated on several occasions.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. I'm so glad I found it againBy S. RobbOne of my childhood favourites! I'm so glad I found it again.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Truly fun for kids (Canadian or otherwise)By H. LowryIt read this book to my granddaughter (3 years old) what seems a hundred times. Neither she nor I are tired of these great poems and ditties. Truly a Canadian book in it references to Casa Loma, Medicine Hat, and Moose Jaw. Others might not find the references to be relevant. But, Alligator Pie "if I don't get some, I think I'm gonna die" My granddaughter has half the book memorized by now.

"Alligator pie, alligator pie, / If I don't get some I think I'm gonna die." So begins one of the most beloved of modern children's rhymes, first introduced in 1974 by Dennis Lee and now reinvented for a new generation of children. Nora Hilb's witty, vibrant artwork makes the speaker's plea for "alligator pie," "alligator stew," and "alligator soup" all the more amusing.

"You can almost hear the skipping ropes slapping on the sidewalk." -- Margaret Laurence
About the Author
DENNIS LEE is the beloved author of many poetry collections for children and adults alike. His books include Alligator Pie, Garbage Delight, Jelly Belly, Bubblegum Delicious, and So Cool. He lives with his wife in Toronto, where he was recently the city's first poet laureate.
NORA HILB is one of Argentina's best-loved children's book illustrators, with more than sixty titles to her credit, including Leo's Tree (Annick, 2004), and Animachines (Annick, 2003). In addition to her fairly recent work here in Canada, Hilb has illustrated for publishers in Switzerland, Spain, and the United States. She has won numerous awards for her work. In 1998, she appeared on the IBBY Honour List for illustrated books, and in 2000, she was a candidate for the 2000 Hans Christian Andersen Award. Hilb holds dual Argentine and German citizenship, speaks several languages, and has taken part in many international illustration exhibitions. Hilb and her family live in Buenos Aires, Argentina.
