Super Sketch Book and So Much More!By Don KidwellBook takes you across the globe from the coast of Almasi to the largest peak in Tanzania (care to guess?) and 98 other fascinating stops in between! Sketches were top notch and sure to challenge you if you care to give them a go yourself. Alongside each prime destination was a smaller map of the world and its' location on the globe making for a fun geography lesson. Also of interest was the bits of trivia included with each renown site. Gives me an itch to pick up my own sketch pad and drawing tools and give them a whirl myself. Lots of fun and I do recommend! 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Sketching Fun By Derrek D Krummel Like many things in life this book gets my mind wandering, there are so many places to dream about. I have sketched the Arch De Triumph, Paris, my favourite city in the world. It reminds me of negotiating the many lanes of traffic jams round the monument many years ago, with my very young children screening in the back seat. Stonehenge? I used to live 30 miles away, and have yet to stop by. Perhaps summer solstice would be appropriate. I think the Colosseum would be challenging to draw, we were there in 2009, a magnificent ruin. I wonder what original drawing size the artist made were (mine are a lot bigger than on the pages, may be something to do with my eyesight). The Sydney Opera House curves are on my list to sketch, even if I mess it up. We were there for the Millenium, watching the fireworks against a backdrop of the Opera House and the Coat Hanger bridge. I'm glad the book includes Mont Saint Michel - the closest we have been is half way up the causeway, after making a wrong turn on the way home from a Sidecarcross race! This book would be an ideal present for people living in various countries. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Unusual and delightful drawing reference.
