Edward Lear : Nonsense Limericks before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Nonsense Limericks:

'There was a Young Person of Smyrna/Whose Grandmother threatened to burn her...' Edward Lear (1812-1888), the Victorian master of surreal humour, is best remembered for his masterpiece The Owl and the Pussycat, but nowhere were his gifts better displayed than in his many limericks. Absurd, bizarre and occasionally sinister, more than 200 are reproduced here, accompanied by equally witty line drawings. Age 8+
