I almost feel like I know his family! As a travel nanny. I meet many types of parents and all of them could use a good chuckle in the midst of the chaos that is called parenthood. I have on a regular basis posted and shared his comments on my Facebook page. I was delighted to see he had finally gotten around to writing a book. It is a book you don't have to read straight through in one sitting to enjoy it. I mean, honestly, who has time for that while raising kids?! I have read it straight through but also have reread certain chapters so I could share with my parents who needed to know they are not alone when their children do outrageous things. In fact, if you are raising kids this should be given at your first baby shower! I know that it is a book I now give to my newborn clients. Yes, the book evokes one chuckle after another and occasionally even a laugh out loud moment. What I think readers will get out of this is a chance to laugh and share the joys and yes, nightmare moments of child rearing. Jason makes us feel it is all normal and lets his misadventures tie us into the bond of parenting. This is a book you won't just read and put back on the bookshelf. You will reread it from time to time or bring it out when your friends with children come to visit to just share a good round of laughter and a start up conversation where everyone wants to tell their jewels of child rearing adventures. It is definitely a conversation starter! I rarely do book reviews but decided this book was worth commenting and sharing. It is going to be a classic among books "all parents should read". I know I will be handing this out as a gift to my clients with children. Thanks Jason for continuing to entertain us and looking forward to the 72-125 list!

By Stacy Bronson We were gearing up for a day out with the kids when my husband grabbed this book, put it in his cargo shorts pocket and said "I might need this if things start to get sideways!". It is not only hilarious but a great spin on putting some of those crazy parenting moments in to perspective! Also, my husband and I feel much better knowing that many things we experience (i.e. first kid: all organic food, second kid: crackers) go on in other people's houses!! Buy the book, you'll laugh out loud and maybe even lighten up (if you need to:).

By HappyCamper As a father of 2 young children this book rings so true for me. This book captures the spirit of parenting - the humor, joy and frustration, which are often simultaneous. Topics in the book range from what it is like to take children camping or on an airplane to how your parenting evolves from your 1st child to your 2nd child, and many more. Perfect for anyone in the throes of parenting who might want a little perspective on the joy and humor of being a parent. This should be required reading for Sex Ed classes.

Jason Good delivers a laugh-out-loud reminder that everything is easier and more fun when approached with a sense of humor--especially parenting. Each list captures a perfect (or perfectly terrible) aspect of parenthood while wholeheartedly embracing every moment: "You Deserve a Break" offers ideas for downtime, such as giving blood and untangling cords, while "Self-Help from a Three-Year-Old" collects such wisdom as "If you fall down, stay down. Someone will pick you up eventually." Sweet, sincere, and oh-so-true, this is the ideal gift for parents who could use a laugh. And isn't that every single one of them?

"Full of lists articulating things that every parent has probably thought of at some point, but simply hasn't had the dedicated pen or writerly chops Good has."
