Nurse Jane : This Side of the Call Light before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised This Side of the Call Light:

Not my experience as an RNBy M.S.M.I have been a nurse for 45 years, and I was very uncomfortable with the authors description of her angry, get-back-at attitude towards what she described as difficult, demanding patients. Yes, we all have worked with some "challenging "patients, but I have never observed the nurses I have worked with in military, government, or private practice, retaliate against a patient. It is just part of the reality the profession - we often do not see people at their best! Grow-up, act professionally, or find another line of work!

About the AuthorAs a farm girl, with a love for animals, I had decided at an early age to become a veterinarian, specializing in exotic animals. That is until I spied the very long gloves they use. Years later my mother and then husband chose for me, a career in nursing. It has been a good fit. That was 27 years ago. Over the years, I have worked in a variety of settings. Predominantly in psychiatry and medical-surgical areas as well as office management on a couple of occasions. Single many of those years, I spent my free time taking college classes, in the soft sciences. I have a passion for education. My husband, Ken and I share 4 sons between us. We have a fabulous daughter in law, who has blessed us with two grandchildren. We live on an acreage, in North central Iowa, with horses, dogs, cats and critters, that tend to break up the quiet.
